5th International Summer School of the Latin Language and Croatian Neo-Latin Culture

The University of Zagreb Faculty of Croatian studies, in collaboration with the Institute for the promotion of humanism Amygdala is pleased to announce the 5th International Summer School of the Latin Language and Croatian Neo-Latin Culture which will take place at the Akademis Academia in Dubrovnik from 13 to 23 July 2026.

Concept and Aims of the School

The school is designed for undergraduate, graduate, and doctoral students, as well as for anyone who wishes to gain knowledge of the Latin language. The teaching approach is based on the inductive speaking method Lingua Latina per se illustrata. In addition to mastering the basics of the Latin language, the mission of the school is to present Croatian Latinist authors and their texts, which are studied through various workshops.

Lectures and Activities

The school is organised by Petar Uskovic Croata (University of Zagreb Faculty of Croatian studies) alumnus of the Academy Vivarium Novum (Rome). Classes are held daily and last four hours, including language exercises and workshops. In addition to acquiring knowledge of spoken Latin, participants will have the opportunity to explore the sights of the city of Dubrovnik, as part of the instruction and text reading will take place in situ. All activities will be conducted in Latin or English.

Who Can Apply?

The 5th International Summer School of the Latin Language and Croatian Neo-Latin Culture addresses BA, MA, and early-stage PhD students from all areas of early modern studies who wish to acquire or deepen their knowledge of the Neo-Latin language and iterature, as well as its methodological tools. Participants are not expected to possess sufficient knowledge of Latin.

Venue and Accomodation

All participants will be accommodated at the Akademis Center in Dubrovnik in double rooms (or single rooms upon personal request) with private bathroom facilities. The center includes classrooms for lectures, a restaurant, and a café bar. The Old Town is located a 30-minute walk away or 5 minutes by public city transport. Participants are required to arrange their own travel to the Summer School venue.
